the Grahs a Reporter on the City Hall and Grawls-Tired of Lying on her Back-Wants to Got Up and Sec Others Lie, Justice still lay on her back last night on the roof of the City Hall, the fleecy drapery of her whitewash wrapped about her and her eyes gazing up through the autumnal mist at the dim. eternal stars. A belated reporter elimbed up the dark cobwebby stairs in the early evening, after the light of day had gone and with it the men who have been tinkering away these many days, trying to get the new statue in place. Not a soul save the reporter was on the roof. A chilly wind was blowing up from the bay, and the weather-worn halliards hanging from the flagstaff on the dome flapped dismaily against the ragged scaffolding about kanging from the flagstaff on the dome flasped dismally against the ragged seaffolding about the clock tower. It was surprisingly still up there. The sounds from the street came up muffled and faint through the misty air, and it was just the hour, too, when the great tide of workers was abiling homeward. The voices of the newsborys and the single of the car bells came up sharply shough, but all the rest was only a confused, formies rumble. The lamps in the streets blinked yellow in the haze, and the dusky stream of human figures could be made out overflowing the sidewalks and pilling up in a great dark mass by the elevated railway station, where it split into two parts, one of which was wallowed up by the yawning bridge entrance and the other disappeared into the awful depths of Alderman Divver's division of Park row.

It was plain enough nothing in particular had been done with Justice during the day just gone. She lay there, a dim white outline, holding upward a shadow, spectral arm. The scales which are ito hang from the hand on that arm were safely stowed away in the lumber garret just under the roof. It wasn't as electry place to be in, and there was be groped. The reporter was making a hasty movement to leave when a low, moaning sigh, which seemed to come straight from the evry depths of the come of the control phaseageway downward to be groped to have moaning begin. Of course it was plain enough wist caused it, but it was plain enough wist caused it, but it was plain enough wist caused it, but it was girls, and there was a law of the college record and the control that it is a plain to the lim. recumber the roof. It wasn't as elevery place to be in, and there was a san opening several inches square, and the east wind wasmoning up among the iron braces and girder, which was plain enough what caused the below here to have monitored to the college of the college record and the control phaseageway downward to be groped to the college of the college record in the college of the college of the college of the c cheery place to be in, and there was still less cheerful passageway downward to be groped through.

The reporter was making a hasty movement to leave when a low, moaning sigh, which seemed to come straight from the very depths of the dim, recumbent figure by his side, brought him to a sudden stop. It isn't pleasant, when you are all alone so in that kind of a place, to have moaning begin. Of course it was plain enough what caused it, but it was disagreeable. Down between Justice's bare feet, and where the copper drapery comes together about the ankles, there is an opening several inches square, and the east wind was moaning up among the iron braces and girders, which are the only vitals the goddess has. The reporter knew all this in ah instant, but it suggested nothing in the way of an inducement to stay any longer. He started this time with distinct rapidity toward the scuttle hole, through which was the way to the world below. But before he had made two stumbling steps past the uplifted, phosphorescent hand of the goddess he was brought to a dead halt, and there was a tendency on the part of his hat to rise up which the wind failed to explain. There was no mistaking it this time. A low, distinct voice came from the goddess's pale lips, and it formed these clearly enunciated words:

"See here, young feller, hold on,"

distinct voice came from the goddess's paie lips, and it formed these clearly enunciated words:

"See here, young feller, hold on."

The reporter did not want to hold on, but he was held on. As he made a lunge toward the dark souttle hole, he was suddenly jerked up short by a hard metallic grasp upon the tail of his overcoat. It jerked him back so suddenly that his jaws came together with a sickening snap, and his eyes blinked and his hat tumbled forward on his nose.

A low, chuckling laugh came from the lips of the figure's upitted hand which had caught him by the hom of his garment and were holding on with a grip like a vise, yet without the slightest apparent effort.

grip like a vise, yet without the slightest apparent effor.

I said hold on, young feller; did you hear me?" said the awful, even voice again, and in an instant, before he could catch his breath from the shock, he was jerked off his feet again, and flapped about from right to left and left to right with a violence which nearly took away his senses, until at lest he was brought up with a sharp final lurch, which landed him on his knees, sent his hat rolling down toward the saves and left his cost collar in a ridge about his ears. The spectre hand now clutched him by the lanels of the coat, just under the chin. "What's the matter with you, young man; haven't you got any bringin' up? Don't you know enough to be civil when a lady speaks to you, say?"

There was another tightening of the hand upon the coat, and the victim managed to

There was another tightening of the hand upon the coat, and the victim managed to stammer out: "I—I beg your pardon, boss. I don't mean boss—I beg your pardon, mm—I'm only a reporter—I didn't mean any—"" A reporter, a World reporter? You're just the man. Look here, put your hand on my pulse, quick—here, right there. Put it there. Now, what's my circulation? Tell me quick—sworn statement or I'll shake the breath out of ye."

The awful clutch again tightened, and the reporter, half dead with fright, managed to mumble out:

Come right straight through from Balem. Ohio, Columbianny county. I'm an Ohio gai, I am. I've got a sister out there looks just like me, only smaller, made at the same Justice factory. She's holding an office on a Government canal boat. She's a figurehead: of course a figurehead's low, but then an office is an office.

"Now, look here, what'd they daub this whitewash all over me for? Do they want to make me look like that old, fudge they used to have up there—that old, wooden fudge? A Fine Day's Sport at the Manhattan Grounds and One Record Broken. Noisy cheers told people a dozen blocks away from Eighty-sixth street and Eighth avenue yesterday that the college athletes were having some fun. The Columbia College Athletic Association was holding the best fall meeting of many years on the Manhattan grounds, and men with blue and white neckties crowded the stand. One college record the one for 440 yards running, was reduced one and one-fifth seconds, and two others came near going. An appreciative crowd of col-legians and their friends of both sexes packed the grand stand and overflowed the quarter stretch. The noisy cheering and college yells could be heard over in Central Park whenever a popular man won. The referee was Mr. C. H. Manes: the indges, Messrs, Alex. Stevens,

W. J. Swan, and E. S. Appleby; Messra, Avery, Hughes, and C. A. Reed kept the time; Mr. R.

O. F. Wright, West Side Athletic Club. 6 yards; J. J. Mapos, Columbia College Athletic Association, 4% yards, and S. E. Corbett, Nassan Athletic Club, 3% yards, were the winners of the trial heats of four men each in the open 100-yard handican. The final heat between these men was close and exciting. Mapes won, amid tremendous shouting, in 10% seconds. Wright was second by a foot, only two feet in front of Corbett.

The 16-pound hammer-throwing event was won by C. Heinman, a muscular School of Mines man of the cluss of '90. M. T. Bogert, '96, School of Arts, 13 feet, was second. Mr. Heinman's throw of 81 feet 4 inches includes hig 15 feet handicap.

The college haif-mile handicap run was won by N. R. Strong, '89, School of Arts, 43 yards start, who runs like Champion Carter, and came through his field with a rush at the finish. Time, 2 minutes 7 seconds. J. S. Appleby was second. The open amateur half-mile race fell to W. Harmar of Yale, who had 30 yards, although S. Y. Gilbert, New York Athletic Club, 28 yards start, gave him a great race, and was second only by three yards. Time, 1 minute 58, seconds.

Guy Richards won the running high jump from scratch with a leap of 5 feet 9% inches. W. T. A. Brauns, '90, School of Arts, 9 inches start, got second.

The first of the tugs of war was between teams from the classes of '91 and '89. Class of '89 won by 8 linches. College enthusiasm knew no bounds while the final tug, between the '90 and '89 men, was going on. Freshmen, sophs, and juniors piled over the railing down into the in-field. The '90 class team won by 3 inches after a desperate pull.

DUNLAP WILL STAY IN DETROIT.

President Stearns Says that he has No Idea of Letting him Go.

DETROIT, Oct. 28 .- The talk about the possible, and it may be added not impossible sale of Fred Dunlap by the Detroit Base Ball Club. is kept up with much persistency. President whether there is any foundation in fact for the prattle. "In the first place." said Mr. Stearns "let me correct a wrong impression which Dunlap has in common with the public. I have not negotiated with Mr. Day or any representative of the New Yorks for the transfer of Dunlap since last season. As for Hardie Richardson, parting with him has never been one instant considered."

"But to come down to bed rock, Mr. Stearns, would the Detroit Club dispose of Dunlap?"

"We believe in Dunlap here, "said he, "The directors of our club esteem him highly professionally and as a man, but in his case as in that of any other player, a sufficiently tempting offer would undoubtedly induce us to part with him. At present, however, no negotiations for him are pending, but there are several clubs that would like to secure him. Pfeffer will not play in Chicago next season, as I believe. In that event Spalding will want Dunlap. Boston needs him, too, as Burdock is away half the time, Pittsburgh yearns for him likewise, but he is still with Detroit and of Detroit, liked by us and liking us." tive of the New Yorks for the transfer of Dun-

SS MORE CUSTOMS CLERKS TO GO.

Four Republicans, who Have Been There Since the War, Get Walking Papers. The twisting of the civil service reform crank in the Custom House yesterday brought up the names of four Republicans who will be dismissed from the service to-day. They are Wm H. Metcalfe, appointed in 1869; Samuel Wm H. Metcalfe, appointed in 1869; Samuel Sparks, appointed in 1861; Sherman P. Fitch and I. P. Conkling, Jr., both appointed in 1862. They are charged with failing in two examinations for promotions.

Collector Magons will next turn his attention to the $1,500 men who didn't know their lessons. Out of a class of twenty-nine twenty-seven failed, sixteen of them twice, and these sixteen will have to walk the plank next.

The lucky ones of the day were John T. Linnin, Edwin A. New, and Patrick J. Fox. who were promoted from $1,200 to $1,400 places.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The Secretary of the Treasury to-day approved the recommendation of Collector Magons for the dismissal of thirty-three clerks in the New York Custom House, who had twice failed to pass the civil service examination for promotion.

CLOSING PRICES

| Control | Control

The stock market experienced something of a reaction to-day. As a rule the highest prices were recorded at the opening. The market continued strong the first hour, owing to extensive purchases by foreign houses. Some estimates place the amount of these purchases as high as 60,000 shares. After the foreign orders had been filled the bears resumed their tactics in Kansas and Texas securities. All of the disquieting reports of yesterday were revived, and official denials that the company was in any way embarrassed failed to check the decline. The trading in the stock was not extensive. The feature of it was the entire absence of support. Not much importance would have been attached to the movement in the stock, but the decline in the bonds was regarded as significant and as confirming the reports referred to. According to its report for the year 1886 the Kansas and Texas Company showed earnings over all charges of about $500,000. We learn that for the nine months ending Sept. 30 the gross earnings this year were $600,000 greater than last year. The net earnings for that period are less than last ecause about $1,000,000 has been expended for renewals and for equipment. It is officially stated that the company has no floating or other obligation outstanding upon which it could be placed in the hands of a receiver. The President Jay Gould is authority for the statement that the earnings are which it could be placed in the hands of a receiver. The President Jay Gould is authority for the statement that the earnings are falling off on account of the competition with the St. Louis and San Francisco and the Atchison roads, but the interest on the bonds is not endangered thereby. There is reason to believe that it is the policy of the Missouri Pacific Company to use the Kansas and Texas road to fight the roads mentioned. The bears appear to have had the first information of this policy. To what extent Mr. Gould may manipulate the Kansas and Texas property both physically and financially no one can tell, and it is this possibility, together with the suspicion that there will be no reluctance to employ effective methods provided some purpose is to be gained, that has created a very uneasy feeling regarding all of the Kansas and Texas securities.

The feeling of uneasiness was aggravated by the annoucement of Mr. Huntington's course in placing his Chesapeake and Ohio road in the hands of a receiver. It can make very little difference to the holders of the securities of the Chesapeake and Ohio Raliroad whether their property is operated by a receiver appointed by Mr. Huntington or by Mr. Huntington himself. In either case they are, as they have always been, entirely dependent upon his courtesy. Their position may not be enviable but, considering the time that has elabeded since the Central Pacific and other schemes were developed in this market, the holders of the so-called Huntington securities cannot reasonably expect to attract much sympathy to themselves. Mr. Huntington's action was promptly seized upon as a great bear card, but it had little direct effect upon the market, since the securities of the Chesapeake and Ohio, like those of the other Huntington roads, are very rarely dealt in. They are held ostensibly for investment, possibly for the reason that the holders have never had an opportunity to get out at the prices at which they got in. Probably little, if any, attention would have been paid to tively firm. Beading regained the first place in the market in every respect, and was an exception in closing unchanged. Another exception was Delaware and Hudson, which was more extensively dealt in than usual at a slight net gain in price. The Reading statement for September was regarded as satisfactory, not only here, but abroad as well, as was shown by the lead that Reading took in the London market before ours opened. Another advance in the price of anthracte indicates the condition of the coal trade. While the net results of the day were lower prices, none of the losses were important except that in Kansas and Texas.

In the Unlisted Department there were axtensive dealings in Cotton Oil Trusts, which declined from 32% to 31% at the close, the net loss being % cent. New York, Chicago and St. Louis 1sts were extensively dealt in at 85 to 85%. Mexican National 1st trust certificates sold at 41%, and 81. Paul, Lastern and Grand Trunk 1sts at 100. The closing was quiet and fairly steady at the lowest prices.

The noteworthy changes in prices to-day are shown by the comparison of final sales:

Sterling exchange irregular. Early in the day the market yielded, on account of the offerings of security bills, but later a scarcity of commercial bills and a fair demand for tomorrow's steamers caused a stiffer market. Posted rates at the close were up to $4.82% for long bills and $4.80% for demand. The Treasury balances show no important changes:

to devise a scheme for completing the road.
About $360,000 will be required for that purpose. The creditors were generally of the opinion that the only way to get a market for the bonds that have been left upon their hands is to finish the road.

The Chase National Bank has been appointed registrar and A. O. Beebe of 10 Wall street transfer agent of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo Railway Company.

Upon motion of President C. P. Huntington of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company that corporation was to-day placed in the hands of William C. Wickham, Second Vice-President of the company, as receiver. The legal proceedings necessary to effect this practically technical change took place in Richmond, Va. In reference to the matter Mr. Huntington furnished the following statement for publication: "The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad owes me $1.765,000, which is all for money loaned to the road from time to time, and which has been applied to the purchase of rails and rolling stock and to provide for interest obligations, payment of taxes, and generally keeping the road in a condition to do its business. It became evident last year that the road could not carry the interest obligations that rest upon it, and the matter was carefully considered and discussed, and, as is very well known, it seemed to be essential that there should be a reduction to $\frac{2}{3}$ cent, of the interest on the B bonds. This reduction has been generally acquiesced in, the holders of a large majority of the bonds having already assented to this reduction and the extension of the bonds for 100 years, and we have little doubt that the balance will make the exchange as soon as they fully understand the extension of the bonds for 100 years, and we have little doubt that the balance will make the exchange as soon as they fully understand the streation; but as the road needs more money to in part double track the road and make additions to the rolling stock, it seemed necessary that some plan should be devised by the shareholders to raise money for that purpose. It is not the intention now to disturb the bonds, but to pay interest on them as heretofore.
